THE CONSTITUTION. AL CONVENTION

There have been many inter-rogatories of late as to when the Constitutional Convention will be convened, the number of delegates that will comprise such Convention, the manner of their selection, etc.

The delegates are to be selected by the people of the whole State, as well as from the different Senatorial districts of the State, as follows: Two delegates from each senatorial district, and fifteen from the State at large. As to the time for holding such election, that is for Gov. Hyde to decide, and he will doubtless name the date for such special election soon. The best brains of the State should compose such Convention, without regard to politics, if the best interests of the State are to be served.

The Washington correspondent of the Globe-Democrat says that it has come to the sudden attention of the Republican congressional leaders that unless reduction in taxation and consequent reduction in expenditures are made very promptly there will be a reaction in the country. The electorate, they are convinced, voted the Republicans into power to effect economies and these have not yet been made in any conspicuous way. He says that there is said to be grumbling in the country against the Republican Congress, complaint being founded on the alleged failure of the party to show due regard to present day conditions. Ain't it the truth?—Louisiana Journal.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington, D. C., Aug. 16.—Upon President Harding's return to Washington from his latest vacation in New Hampshire, it was agreed among Republican leaders after a conference with the executive that Congress will take a recess after the passage by the House of the tax bill, which at this writing has not been introduced, the passage of the Farmers' Relief program and the extension of the Emergency Tariff act until the permanent tariff law shall be enacted.

This means, of course, that the tax bill, which should be one of the most carefully considered of all, will be rushed through at high speed, thus recalling a recent colloquy in the House, as follows:

Mr. Mondell (Rep. floor leader). The tax bill will pass the House much sooner than the date the gentleman fixes.

Mr. Mann (former Rep. floor leader). I hope not. A good tax bill will not pass then if it passes quickly. The sooner it passes the poorer it will be if it passes without consideration in the Committee and without consideration in the House. What I said a while ago would then be true, God help the country! (Applause.)

Keller, Republican, Indicts Administration.

No attack made upon the Republican administration to date has caused more comment than that made by Representative Keller (Rep., Minnesota), one of the really important men of the great northwest. No Democrat has been so severe in his criticism of the administration as Mr. Keller, because the Democrats have been charitable toward the struggling administration, and sincerely desirous of aiding it to solve the problems that confronted it largely as a result of the obstructive tactics of the Republicans in the last two years of the Democratic administration.

Some of the indictments brought against the Republican party by this able Republican, representing a great agricultural constituency are:

"Our ability to compete with other nations for world markets—and consequently our prosperity—primarily depends on reasonable transportation charges, cheap power, low interest, easy rents, low taxation, efficient labor and systematic distribution. We have adopted a policy which has brought about the exact reverse of these ideal conditions. The government has attempted to legislate upon every one of these vital problems within the past six months, but instead of honestly searching for the best way out of our industrial difficulties, and welcoming the disinterested advice of economists, scientists, engineers, real financiers and experts in various lines, the machinery of government has been commandeered by a little clique, ignorant of the A B C's of economics, whose blind obedience to Wall street is responsible for the stupid, selfish and short-sighted policy that is retarding our prosperity and creating profound distrust and discontent among the people.

"The President has assumed more power than any of his predecessors and tells Congress what bills to pass. Bills concocted at secret conferences are introduced without being referred to responsible committees.

"The Ways and Means Committee has demonstrated its utter unfitness to deal intelligently with the great financial measures on which to a great degree the prosperity of the country depends.

"There are rules of taxation just as well established as the laws of mathematics. But instead of calling in competent experts, the Ways and Means Committee seeks the advice of a multimillionaire Cabinet officer. He suggests repeal of the excess profits tax, reduction of the higher surtax rates on individual incomes, increase of the corporation tax, retention of the ruinous transportation tax and the nuisance taxes, with new impositions on automobiles and bank checks and increased rates on first-class postage.

"This policy will further depress industry and fail to raise sufficient revenue for the government's needs: Less than 5,000 persons—most of them war profiteers—pay the higher surtaxes on incomes of more than $100,000 annually, yet Secretary Mellon wants to cut in half the $500,000,000 which they contribute to the upkeep of the government and throw the additional burden upon small manufacturers, jobbers, merchants and workers and farmers.

"Most members of the House want to carry out the people's wishes, but a little dominant minority has tied down the safety valve of free discussion until an explosion impends which will scatter the Republican party from Maine to California."

And the Harding administration is not yet six months old.

Democratic Constructive Legislation

With the Republican Senate, and House at loggerheads, with Republican Senators and Representatives criticizing the administration, its methods and policies, with almost painful lack of leadership in both houses, with practically nothing yet accomplished in the way of legislation after four months of continuous session of Congress, it is refreshing to turn to the following record of constructive statesmanship made by the last Democratic administration, as set forth by Representative James C. Cantrell of Kentucky in his masterful speech on the tariff:

"The Republican party in all of its campaigns has charged that the Democratic party lacked constructive ability and was unable to properly conduct the government. All fair minded people know, of course, that such a charge is purely for political effect and that such a charge is contrary to the history of our country. To call to mind those things fresh in the memory of the people I assert without fear of contradiction that during the eight years of the administration of Woodrow Wilson more constructive legislation in behalf of the people was written on the statute books of our nation than under any previous administration in our history, and the substantial achievements brought about during the eight years of Democratic control will make up the brightest pages of our national history.

"Under the Wilson administration the greatest war in the world's history was fought and won. Let us not forget that Woodrow Wilson was Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy in that great struggle. The American Army and Navy brought the World War to a successful conclusion and secure imperishable fame for the American republic. The Democratic administration financed not only the World War for our own country, but financed our Allies and came through without a panic and with the credit of our nation secure—surely in a business way the most stupendous undertaking in history.

"The Democratic party passed the federal reserve laws, which has made us the creditor nation of the earth.

"The Democratic party passed the federal farm loan law, which enables the farmer to borrow money on long-term notes at low rates of interest in order that the farms of our country might be developed and our food supply made secure.

"The Democratic party passed the Underwood tariff law under which our nation saw the greatest prosperity in its history.

"The Democratic party and its leaders had control and won the war and the Republican party during its two years of power has been unable to even make a treaty of peace.

"The Democratic party passed the Smith-Lever Agricultural Extension Act, established the Bureau of Markets, the Bureau of Farm Management, the cotton future act, the grain grades bill, the co-operative farm administration act, and the federal warehouse act.

"It was the Democratic party which developed the parcels post act, and gave the American people relief from the express companies' trust.

"The Democratic party established the Department of Labor and gave the laboring men a member in the President's Cabinet.

"The Democratic party passed the child labor act and the workingmen's compensation act.

"The Democratic party established a women's bureau in the Department of Labor, which has since been destroyed by a Republican Congress, withholding appropriations for its support.

"It was a Democratic President who appeared before Congress and urged that the woman-suffrage amendment be submitted to the States for ratification.

"A list of other measures enacted under a Republican administration for the public welfare could be named, but to what single measure can the Republican party, since its two years in power, point with pride in the interest of the great majority of American citizens? Let it be remembered that the Republican party has had a majority in both branches of Congress for the past two years.

"Our great leader, Woodrow Wilson, was stricken down before his administration came to a close, but the great record which the Democratic party made under his leadership will always be an inspiration to those who love justice and to those whose hearts go out to struggling humanity. He was cut down in the prime of life, but his words and deeds will be forever honored and cherished because he labored for humanity with the ideals of the Democratic party always before him as his guiding star. Let those who love justice and equality before the law; let those who believe in serving the masses rather than the classes; let those who want to see America take her rightful place as a leader of nations strike hands with the Democratic party, so that progress and not reaction shall be our national policy."

Sedalia, Mo., August 15.—E. Knops of Arkansas, Harry A. Sturgis and O. F. Price of Clarksburg, Mo., who conducted an eating stand at the state fair, were arrested here today on a charge of selling intoxicating liquors. Two and one-half gallons of corn whisky found in their possession were confiscated by the authorities.

The men were placed in the County Jail and will be turned over to federal authorities.

The foregoing was taken from Tuesday's Globe-Democrat, and one of the parties arrested is said to be E. Knopf, who formerly conducted a bakery here, but left for Marianna, Ark., a year or more ago. While the name in the dispatch is not spelled correctly for his name, it is a very natural error, when the peculiar spelling of his name is considered.
